Request for Proposal: Credible Messengers Program #682

Section I. Specifications

1. Introduction:

The ability of youth to engage in and connect with community supports that help to build social capital and support economic and social-emotional stability is minimized if those presenting the message are not credible. Credibility lies in the ability to create a relationship based on similarities, an understanding of where youth come from, an understanding of involvement with the justice system that youth can appreciate and the ability of the messenger to communicate with the youth. The Credible Messenger program partners with the youth, families and the case manager to serve as a guide, mediator and mentor, and assist youth in becoming capable of functioning within the community without further involvement in the justice system, support the youth's well-being, help youth to change or break generational cycles and alter challenging life circumstances.

This program is based on the Arches Credible Messenger Program in New York City. New York has eliminated its youth prison population by bringing services to the youth and their families into the neighborhoods. They recruited and hired staff living in these neighborhoods who have credibility within the neighborhoods, an understanding or past involvement with either the juvenile justice or criminal justice systems and can partner with the youth and their families to promote change and accountability.

This is a curriculum-based group and individual mentoring intervention that assists justice-involved youth transform the attitudes and behaviors that have led to criminal activity. The program goes beyond the traditional mentoring approach. Credible Messengers work with youth in both group sessions and individually to promote positive behaviors. This is achieved by mentoring youth who are involved in the juvenile system, ensuring youth have the resources and support to make the positive changes needed to avoid further interaction with the youth justice system. The objective is not to just prevent subsequent criminal behavior but to build skills in youth so they can be successful in school and work and develop the core competencies needed to be successful within the community.

RCHSD and the Provider will locate and recruit Messengers through contacts with community centers, churches, local activists, COP Houses and others within the targeted neighborhoods. Reliance on these entities within the community to assist in identifying individuals who are credible and have a positive skill set, is imperative to the success of this program. Services would be delivered in the community setting where the highest level of need is evident. This may include the school, at home or in a community center or church. Continuing to partner with these entities for space and localized services and support increases the likelihood of success for the youth in this program. Additionally, Messengers and youth will partner with the youth's assigned school, youth justice case manager, family and other support systems. All entities will regularly give input on the progress and successes noted with each youth and will create a formal support system for success.

The focus of this effort is on the achievement of developmental outcomes such as the ability to seek help in a crisis, get along with others, show up on time, etc. that can prepare a person for education, employment and civic participation. Our Credible Messenger Program will utilize the evidence-based curricula, "Thinking for a Change", developed by the US Department of Justice, National Institute for Corrections; and "Interactive Journaling", an evidence-based program that uses journaling to assess a youth's readiness to change and provides strategies that lead an individual successfully through the process of change, action and maintenance of prosocial behavior.

Youth often find themselves in less than stable situations which can divert attention from day-to-day functioning and reduce their ability to participate in programming. To address this issue, wrap around funds will be made available to assist in stabilizing their home environments to reduce stress and direct attention back to programming. These funds can also assist in the payment of fees for extra-curricular activities, enrichment programs, sports and family enrichment activities. "Breaking bread" is an essential function of the program and promotes youth engagement. Food will be provided for group sessions and transportation will be arranged for all youth. Rewards will be provided to youth who successfully complete milestones within the program and upon successful completion of the program.

The evidence-based, structured and experiential writing approach, "Interactive Journaling", goes beyond standard educational materials and resources to make the individuals the center of their own change process. This approach helps participants understand that change is possible and they are responsible for making it happen; reinforces and sustains what is provided in program settings and the commitment to the process of self-change; gives the youth the opportunity to tell their own story in their own words; keeps youth engaged, motivated and organized in their change efforts; provides a permanent resource; moves participants from being information gatherers to owners of the change process; gives practical techniques to move participants along the stages and processes of change; engages participants in the creation of a tool for healthy living. Modules include: My Substance Use, My Feelings, My Family, Relationships and Communication Skills, How We Think, How We Change, Building Strong Values, Moving Forward, etc.

With the combination of real world mentors and strong curriculum, youth will gain a sense of themselves, sense of community, responsibility, decision making, long-term planning, educational and work goals, self-sufficiency, etc. Connecting youth to resources, positive activities and a support system where they live will promote positive change and accountability. It is expected that all youth involved in the Credible Messenger program will receive 8 contacts per month. Youth will not be discharged from the program for non-compliance or sporadic non-compliance.
